Working press credentials for Carolina home games can be obtained by contacting Rick Brewer in the Sports Information Office. Brewer's mailing address is P.O. Box 2126, Chapel Hill, N.C. 27514.

Requests are screened with care to insure a working pressbox. Children, spouses and pets are not allowed in compliance with the working code of the U.S. Basketball Writers Association.

Western Union facilities are not available in Carmichael Auditorium. However, the Carolina Sports Information Office does provide several phones for writers to use in moving their copy. The University also has one telecopier which is available on a first-come, first-serve basis after each game. It is strongly suggested, however, that whenever possible, writers bring their own telecopier. This will allow all copy to be moved more quickly and will alleviate any deadline problems.

Complete boxscores are provided at halftime and at the end of each game. A play-by-play is also available.

Carolina's Basketball Radio Network is one of the largest and best in the entire nation. Tar Heel games can be heard from the Bahamas to Canada. The network is handled by WCHL Radio in Chapel Hill. Woody Durham, news director of WPTF-TV in Durham, does the play-by-play with WCHL's Jim Heavner and Bob Holliday providing color commentary.

The Dean Smith Show will be televised across the state of North Carolina each Sunday. Durham serves as emcee for this program.

Several Tar Heel games will be regionally televised this season. At least one game will be nationally televised and at least two others will be broadcast across the country on radio.

Prospectus

Despite the loss of National Player-of-the-Year Phil Ford to graduation, there are high hopes for another strong basketball team at the University of North Carolina this season.

Carolina, however, must get improved play from all its returning players if the Tar Heels are to remain among the top teams in college basketball. Carolina posted a 23-8 record last season and won the Atlantic Coast Conference regular-season championship.

But, the team's starting backcourt of Ford and Tom Zaliagiris is no longer in school. The same is true for reserve center Geff Crompton.

"We expect to have another good basketball team this year," says Tar Heel Coach Dean Smith. "It's obvious we are going to miss the leadership and outstanding play of Ford and the leadership and defensive play of Zaliagiris. Crompton also helped us win some key games last season.

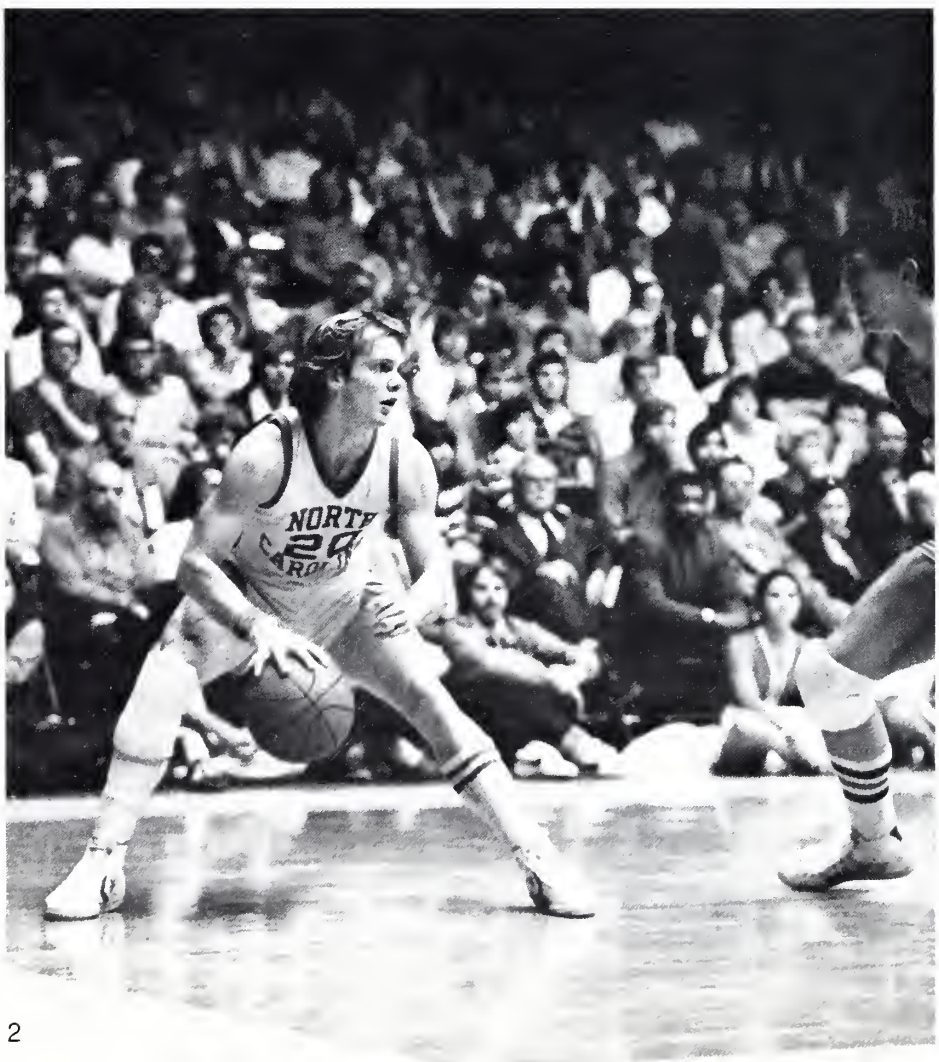
"I believe we have some very good players returning, however. If the 'chemistry' of the team fits and if we can rebound exceptionally well, we can have a good season."

Heading the list of returning players for Carolina is All-America forward Mike O'Koren, a 6-7 junior from Jersey City, N.J. An excellent all-around player, O'Koren was one of only two players in the ACC to rank among the top 10 in the league in scoring, rebounding, assists, field goal percentage and free throw percentage in 1978.

O'Koren averaged 17.3 points per game and finished second in the nation in field goal percentage with a mark of 64.3. He is also a solid defensive player.

Mike is one of five returning players who started at one time or another in the frontcourt last season. The other four are 6-6 senior Dudley Bradley of Edgewood, Md.; 6-11 junior Jeff Wolf of Kohler, Wis.; 6-9 junior Rich Yonakor of Euclid, Ohio; and 6-6 sophomore Al Wood of Gray, Ga.

Bradley is an excellent defensive player, while Wood shot 60.4 per cent from the floor last season. Yonakor and Wolf split time as the starting Tar Heel center.



Those four players should battle 6-9 sophomore Pete Budko of Lutherville, Md. and 6-9 freshman Chris Brust of Babylon, N.Y. for the two starting spots beside O'Koren on the front line. Brust, however, missed valuable practice time during Carolina's early workouts while recovering from foot surgery.

With Ford and Zaliagiris graduated, the race for the starting backcourt positions is wide open. The candidates there are 6-1 senior Ged Doughton of Winston-Salem, N.C.; 6-4 senior Randy Wiel of the Netherland Antilles, who will try the guard spot after playing forward; 6-5 junior John Virgil of Elm City, N.C.; 6-1 junior Dave Colescott of Marion, Ind.; 6-3 sophomore Mike Pepper of Vienna, Va.; and 6-2 freshman Jimmy Black of the Bronx, N.Y.

Virgil could swing to a forward position if needed and Bradley could be used at guard in certain situations.

Wolf, Yonakor and Doughton all had off-season surgery. But, that will apparently not hamper them this year. All have rehabilitated very well.

The Tar Heels have been known over the years for their fast-breaking offense and tenacious man-to-man pressure defense. The pressure defense which triggers the fast break is one of the major reasons Carolina annually ranks among the national leaders in field goal percentage. However, it will be hard for the Tar Heels to improve on last year's field goal mark of 53.2.

"We will certainly miss the defensive play of Ford and Zaliagiris," says Smith. "We will have to work very hard to have another good defensive team. We're hopeful our big people have improved their quickness. That will be a great help defensively."

One of the major problems facing this Carolina team is the schedule. That includes 15 games against ACC opponents, all of which should be very difficult. In addition, the Tar Heels must play teams like NCAA semi-finalist Arkansas, Cincinnati, Michigan State, Detroit, Virginia Tech and Providence.

"On paper it would seem we will have a tough time matching the success of last year's team," says Smith. "But, we normally can expect improvement from our returning players. If we get that and that special 'chemistry', we can be a truly exciting team.

"One thing is for certain. I know we can count on a group of hustling and team-oriented young men who will do their very best."

Ferebee Taylor/Chancellor

It goes without saying that the chief administrator of one of America's outstanding universities is a very busy man. His responsibilities go far beyond the normal nine to five routine, including oversight of the entire academic and financial welfare of the university.

The chancellor of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, Nelson Ferebee Taylor, is no exception. As chancellor of one of the country's leading research institutions and the South's finest university, his duties are not intended for the faint of heart or the lethargic.

Despite the burdens of his position, Chancellor Taylor finds time to be Carolina's number one athletic fan. He is a frequent visitor to Tar Heel locker rooms, congratulating coaches and players alike for outstanding efforts, win or lose.

The Chancellor's strong interest in athletics at Carolina is natural. It stems not merely from the fact that the Tar Heel intercollegiate athletic program is one of the most successful in the nation. It goes beyond that. Carolina's respected national reputation in teaching and research is matched only by the university community's avid interest in athletics, from both participants' and spectators' viewpoints. Kenan professors regularly interrupt their classes to talk about that week's football or basketball contest. The vast majority of the 20,000 students at the University participate in the intercollegiate or the extensive intramural program. At Carolina, academics and athletics go hand-in-hand in a manner few other universities can emulate. So, the thought of seeing Chancellor Taylor in Kenan Stadium on a hot August afternoon watching pre-season football practice is not surprising to those who understand the special role of athletics at Carolina.

The Chancellor is keenly aware of this role.

"At the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, we will continue to strive for excellence in our Athletic Department as we will in all other departments," the Chancellor says.

He feels that the Athletic Department is an important part of the total University and expresses a hope that all students will make use of what it offers, either as participants or spectators.

Now in his sixth year as chancellor, Dr. Taylor assumed the position on February 1, 1972, succeeding J. Carlyle Sitterson who had served in the post for six years. Dr. Taylor is the fifth chancellor in the University's history.

Immediately prior to being named chancellor, Dr. Taylor served for two years as vice president for administration for the Consolidated University of North Carolina system. He was a unanimous choice of the Board of Trustees to become the new chancellor of the Chapel Hill campus.

A native of Oxford, N. C., Chancellor Taylor is a graduate of Carolina, receiving his A.B. degree in American history in 1942. He was the first Herbert Worth Jackson Scholar at Carolina and served as the president of Phi Beta Kappa, making straight A's for three years.

As an undergraduate, he was also president of the University Club, speaker for the Student Legislature and a member of the Order of the Golden Fleece and the Order of the Grail.

The Chancellor served as a Navy midshipman in World War II and achieved the rank of lieutenant. He served aboard destroyers in both the Atlantic and the Pacific and was awarded the Bronze Star and two commendations.

After being released from active duty, he entered Harvard Law School and received his LL.B. degree Cum Laude in 1949. While at Harvard, he was the winner of Ames Competition in moot court activities.

Selected as a Rhodes Scholar, the Chancellor entered Balliol College at Oxford University, England, following his studies at Harvard. He received a B.A. in philosophy, politics and economics from Oxford in 1951 and his M.A. in 1955.

Admitted to the North Carolina bar in 1949 and to the New York bar in 1953, Dr. Taylor was associated with the firm of Arthur, Dry and Dole in New York City from 1951 to 1958. In 1958, he became a partner in the firm of Arthur, Dry, Kalish, Taylor and Wood.

He returned to Carolina in the spring of 1968 as a visiting professor of corporate law in the UNC Law School. On July 1, 1970, he assumed his duties with the Consolidated University's General Administration in Chapel Hill. In that capacity, he served as a legal advisor and acted as a liaison between the Board of Governors and its committees.

Since assuming the duties as chancellor, Dr. Taylor has placed special emphasis on the public service aspect of the University. Many short courses, workshops and special projects have been organized, serving the entire state of North Carolina and its people, as well as the students and residents of the university community.

Most recently, Chancellor Taylor received an honorary LL.D. degree from Duke University in 1977.

Chancellor Taylor is married to the former Louise C. Ellington, also of Oxford, N. C. They have three daughters—Louise, Sarah and Martha, all students at Carolina.

Bill Cobey/Athletic Director

In keeping with the youth movement present in the Department of Athletics at the University of North Carolina, Bill Cobey at 39 is one of the youngest athletic directors in America's major college ranks.

His age seems insignificant when one assesses the experience in athletic administration he brings to the position and the esteem with which he is held by other members of his profession. His 11 years in athletic administration at Chapel Hill and the success he has helped bring to Carolina athletics during his tenure here are all the credentials he need present to be considered one of the most respected young administrators in collegiate sports today.

Appointed to the athletic directorship February 1, 1976, Cobey is now in his third full year at the helm of the Tar Heel program. He succeeded Homer Rice in the position.

Responsible for Carolina's 25-sport athletic program, Cobey is a regular spectator at most Tar Heel sports events. Whether the sport is football, volleyball or soccer, if the Tar Heels are playing, Cobey can be expected to be in the stands. Cobey has put emphasis on a balanced athletic program with strong non-revenue teams.

The search procedure to find a successor to Rice was an elaborate process. Over 40 people connected with the Carolina athletic department had a role in the decision-making process.

"There was a clear consensus that Bill Cobey would make an outstanding director of athletics," Chancellor Ferebee Taylor says. "He is widely respected for his integrity and his knowledge of intercollegiate athletics.

"That consensus has certainly proven correct. He has done a great job of directing our athletic program. His appointment has insured continuity in the operation of our athletic program and maintained the fine traditions of Carolina athletics."

Before being appointed athletic director at Carolina, Cobey had been interviewed for high athletic positions by several other schools. He had always hoped to attain an athletic directorship at a major university.

Cobey has strong roots in collegiate athletics. His father was Jim Tatum's assistant athletic director at the University of Maryland. When Tatum came to Chapel Hill in 1956 to become head football coach, Cobey's father was named athletic director at Maryland. Cobey credits his father, Tatum and Rice for his success.

Like Rice, Cobey strives to stay out of the spotlight while getting the job done.

"The attention should go to our athletes and coaches," Cobey says. "Administrators don't need to get any fanfare.

"Our goal is to carry on the great tradition Carolina has had in intercollegiate athletics. We will always work toward maintaining a strong, overall program."

There has been absolutely nothing wrong with the Tar Heel program under Cobey's leadership. Carolina has captured the Carmichael Cup for over-all excellence in the Atlantic Coast Conference each of the last two years. During the 1977-78 school year, Carolina's men's teams won over 72 per cent of their contests and the women won over 68 per cent of theirs.

Cobey is only the fourth man in history to head Carolina's athletic department.

The late Bob Fetzer was Carolina's first athletic director, serving from 1922 until 1951. He was succeeded by the late Charles P. (Chuck) Erickson who held the post until his retirement in May 1968. Rice was hired to replace Erickson the following January.

Cobey is presently in his 11th year with the University. He held four posts in that time prior to becoming athletic director.

His initial position at Carolina was as academic counselor for Bill Dooley's 1968 Tar Heel football team. In that capacity, he advised players on their academic work, served as a counselor for personal problems and had duties as Dooley's administrative assistant. Cobey continued in that position until 1971, but also added the role of assistant athletic business manager in 1969.

In 1971, Cobey was elevated to assistant athletic director for operations. He was directly responsible for the running of Kenan Stadium and Carmichael Auditorium on the days of football and basketball games. He then served as Rice's chief assistant in the position of assistant athletic director for promotions and finance.

Cobey was graduated from Emory University in Atlanta in 1962 with a B.A. degree in chemistry. He was a Dean's List student there and served as president of Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity for two years. He followed that with an M.B.A. degree from the Wharton School of Business at the University of Pennsylvania in 1964. After a year as an administrative assistant for Suburban Trust Company in Hyattsville, Md., he worked with Dow Chemical Company in Midland, Mich. for a year.

He then returned to school at the University of Pittsburgh and earned a Master's degree in education in 1968. During his time at Pittsburgh, he took part in a graduate teaching internship in physical education and was an assistant football coach in the West Mifflin Area and Swissvale Joint School Districts.

A member of the National Association of Collegiate Directors of Athletics, Cobey has been very active in community affairs since coming to Chapel Hill. Past president of the Chapel Hill-Carrboro YMCA, he played a key part in the drive to build a new YMCA building here. He is also a former assistant campaign chairman of the Chapel Hill-Carrboro United Fund. A past member of the Board of Directors of the Chapel Hill Chapter of the American Field Service, he is a member of the East Chapel Hill Rotary Club.

He is married to the former Nancy Sullivan of College Park, Md. They have two children, Cathy, 12, and Billy 6. The Cobeys are members of the University United Methodist Church.

Tar Heel Tradition

Three national championships, four national players-of-the-year, a host of All-Americas and one of the best winning percentages in the history of the game.

Those are just some of the reasons the University of North Carolina has one of the greatest traditions in college basketball. There is little wonder that basketball is a very special sport on the Carolina campus.

Tar Heel teams have been making national headlines for years and are annually ranked among the elite of the college game.

Since the sport began here in 1911, Carolina has posted a record of 1,156 victories against only 457 losses. Fifty-eight of the school's 68 teams have had winning records.

Carolina is one of only a few schools which has won 1,000 games. Carolina ranks with Kentucky and St. John's as the three teams with the best won-loss percentage in history.

The Tar Heels are one of only six teams to capture both a National Collegiate Athletic Association and National Invitation Tournament championship. The Tar Heels won the NCAA crown in 1957 with a perfect 32-0 record and then swept the NIT in 1971. Carolina also was voted national champion in 1924 with a 26-0 record.

Carolina has won the NCAA's Eastern Regional Tournament six times since 1946. No other school has won more than three.

Since the NCAA Tournament was first played, Carolina has been one of the most dominant teams in the game. In fact, one-third of all NCAA semi-final appearances have been made by just eight teams—UCLA (12), Ohio State (8), Carolina (7), Kentucky (7), Kansas (6), Cincinnati (5), Indiana (4) and Oklahoma State (4).

Despite the University's long and storied basketball past, the sport has become even more popular here since Dean Smith became the head coach. During the last dozen years, Carolina ranks with UCLA and Marquette as the winningest teams in America.

The Tar Heels have played in a national post-season tournament each of the last 12 years. The 1967, 1968, 1969, 1972, 1975 and 1977 teams won the Atlantic Coast Conference championship and advanced into NCAA play. The Tar Heels won the Eastern Regionals in 1967, 1968, 1969, 1972 and 1977 and went on to the NCAA's final four. The 1970, 1971, 1973 and 1974 teams went to the NIT in New York.

Thus, no freshman class since 1963 has missed a post-season tournament at Carolina.

In the last 12 years Carolina has won 297 games and lost just 74. That's roughly an average of 25-6 a season, one of the most amazing marks in intercollegiate athletics.

The Tar Heels have managed these feats against the toughest opposition in America. Carolina's schedule is annually ranked as one of the 10 toughest in the country.

Carolina plays big-name opponents from across the nation. In recent seasons Carolina has faced such teams as Kentucky, Utah, Princeton, Louisville, Providence, California, Houston, Florida State, Notre Dame, Brigham Young, Alabama, Purdue, Rutgers, Michigan State, Detroit and Pittsburgh.

Making the schedule even more difficult is the fact the Tar Heels play so many games on the road. Just last season Carolina played in such diverse places as Madison Square Garden, the Louisiana Superdome in New Orleans and Honolulu, Hawaii.

While the non-conference schedule is difficult, Carolina's keenest competition comes from the teams in its own league—the ACC. Teams in the conference besides Carolina are Clemson, Duke, Maryland, N.C. State, Virginia and Wake Forest. Amazingly, Carolina has not finished lower than second in the ACC standings in the past 12 years.

The Tar Heel fame in basketball has even spread abroad. The Tar Heels have twice competed in the International Christmas Tournament at Madrid, Spain in the last eight seasons.

Tournament play is nothing new for Carolina, however. The Tar Heels have won 39 tournament championships in the sport's 68 years in Chapel Hill. The Tar Heels have competed in such tournaments as the Far West Classic in Portland; the Rainbow Classic in Honolulu; the Holiday Festival in New York City; and the Sugar Bowl Classic in New Orleans.

Carolina has had at least one player on each of the past four U.S. Olympic teams. Larry Brown, now coach of the Denver Nuggets, starred on the 1964 team which won the championship in Tokyo. Charlie Scott was a member of the 1968 championship team at Mexico City. Then Bobby Jones played on the 1972 team at Munich.

In the 1976 Games at Montreal, Phil Ford, Walter Davis, Tommy LaGarde and Mitch Kupchak all played key roles in the U.S. sweep of the Gold Medal. Tar Heel Coach Dean Smith was the U.S. coach.

There have been dozens of All-Americas at Carolina. Twelve of them have played in the Dean Smith Era alone—Billy Cunningham, Bob Lewis, Larry Miller, Charlie Scott, Dennis Wuycik, Bill Chamberlain, Robert McAdoo, Bobby Jones, Mitch Kupchak, Tommy LaGarde, Phil Ford and Mike O'Koren.

Last season Ford became the fourth Tar Heel player to be named National Player of the Year. The others were Jack Cobb in 1926, George Glamack in 1941 and Lennie Rosenbluth in 1957.

The crowds which turn out to see the Tar Heels play are proof of the sport's popularity in Chapel Hill. Every game is a sellout in beautiful Carmichael Auditorium. Students often sleep at the Auditorium the night before they are to pick up tickets just to be sure they get into the games. The pressbox is always filled to capacity at every home game.

Even the Tar Heel intrasquad games are sellouts. Most Tar Heel games are televised. Carolina is on national television each year. In addition, several other games are televised across the Eastern Seaboard.

It's obvious then that truly nothing could be finer than basketball at Carolina.

Carolina Basketball—International Style

Carolina's 1976 Gold Medalists

Phil Ford | Walter Davis | Tommy LaGarde | Mitch Kupchak

When four North Carolina Tar Heels played key roles in the United States' sweep of the Olympic basketball Gold Medal in 1976, it marked another in a long line of Tar Heel successes on the international level.

In recent years Carolina players and teams have traveled everywhere from the Great Wall of China to Red Square in Moscow to the beaches of Waikiki.

However, Carolina's impact on the international game may have reached an all-time high with the U.S. success in the Montreal Summer Games.

Mitch Kupchak, Walter Davis, Tommy LaGarde and Phil Ford were all instrumental in the Americans' six-game sweep of the Olympics. So, of course, were Carolina Coach Dean Smith, who coached the U.S. team, and Bill Guthridge, his Tar Heel assistant who also worked with the Olympians.

Playing as a team and stressing defense, the Americans devastated Italy in their first game. After edging a fire-up Puerto Rican team, the U.S. then whipped Yugoslavia, Czechoslovakia, Canada in the semi-finals and Silver Medalist Yugoslavia again in the finals.

Smith recently turned down the nomination to coach the 1980 team. However, he will work closely with the U.S. Olympic Committee as an advisor.

Carolina's representation on the 1976 Olympic team was certainly nothing new. In fact, the Tar Heels have had players on the last four U.S. teams.

Larry Brown started this amazing streak in 1964 when he played on the winning U.S. team in Tokyo. Charlie Scott starred on the 1968 squad which swept the Olympic title in Mexico City. Bobby Jones was a member of the 1972 team at Munich.

There is a good chance this streak will continue in 1980. Mike O'Koren was a starting forward on the U.S. team which took part in the Gregarian Cup competition in Moscow last summer. He would like to play in the 1980 Games and would certainly be a top contender for a spot on the team.

While the Olympics rank at the top of Carolina's international and overseas competition, there have been plenty of other highlights as well.

Carolina players have been prominent in the last two Pan American Games. Robert McAdoo starred on the U.S. team in 1971, while Tommy LaGarde played on the winning American team in Mexico City in 1975. LaGarde was also a member of the U.S. Continental Cup team which played games in the Soviet Union, Yugoslavia, Greece and other parts of Europe in 1975.

Dennis Wuycik played on the U.S. pre-Olympic team which toured Europe in 1971.

In the spring of 1973, a Russian national team toured America, playing a U.S. all-star team. Two of the biggest stars in that series were George Karl and Bobby Jones.

Later that summer Karl became one of the first Americans ever to go to Mainland China. He was a member of a U.S. basketball team which played there and again was one of the American heroes.

In the fall of 1973 Mitch Kupchak played on the U.S. team which won the basketball championship at the World University Games in Moscow.

Carolina took its entire team to Madrid, Spain in 1971 and played in the International Christmas Tournament there. The Tar Heels swept past teams from Brazil and Spain in their first two games before facing Real Madrid, the European champion, in the finals.

In a game televised across Europe, the Tar Heels gave one of their finest performances to win the championship.

Carolina returned to Madrid in 1974, but was edged by the veteran Real Madrid team in the finals. The Tar Heels did pull a stunning upset, however, beating the powerful Cuban National Team on a last-second shot by Walter Davis.

Another of Carolina's greatest efforts came in 1972. Although not actually leaving the country, the Tar Heels did fly from the mainland to win the Rainbow Classic in Honolulu. With Karl, Kupchak and Jones leading the way, Carolina defeated Louisville for the championship there. Ford and O'Koren paced the Tar Heels to another Rainbow triumph last season.

Tar Heel players have also made big names for themselves playing professional basketball in Europe. Doug Moe had the most success, three times being selected European Player of the Year. Other Tar Heels who have played in Europe include Dave Chadwick, Kim Huband, Craig Corson, Donn Johnston, Donald Washington, Ed Stahl, Bill Chambers, Bruce Buckley and Tom Zaliagiris.

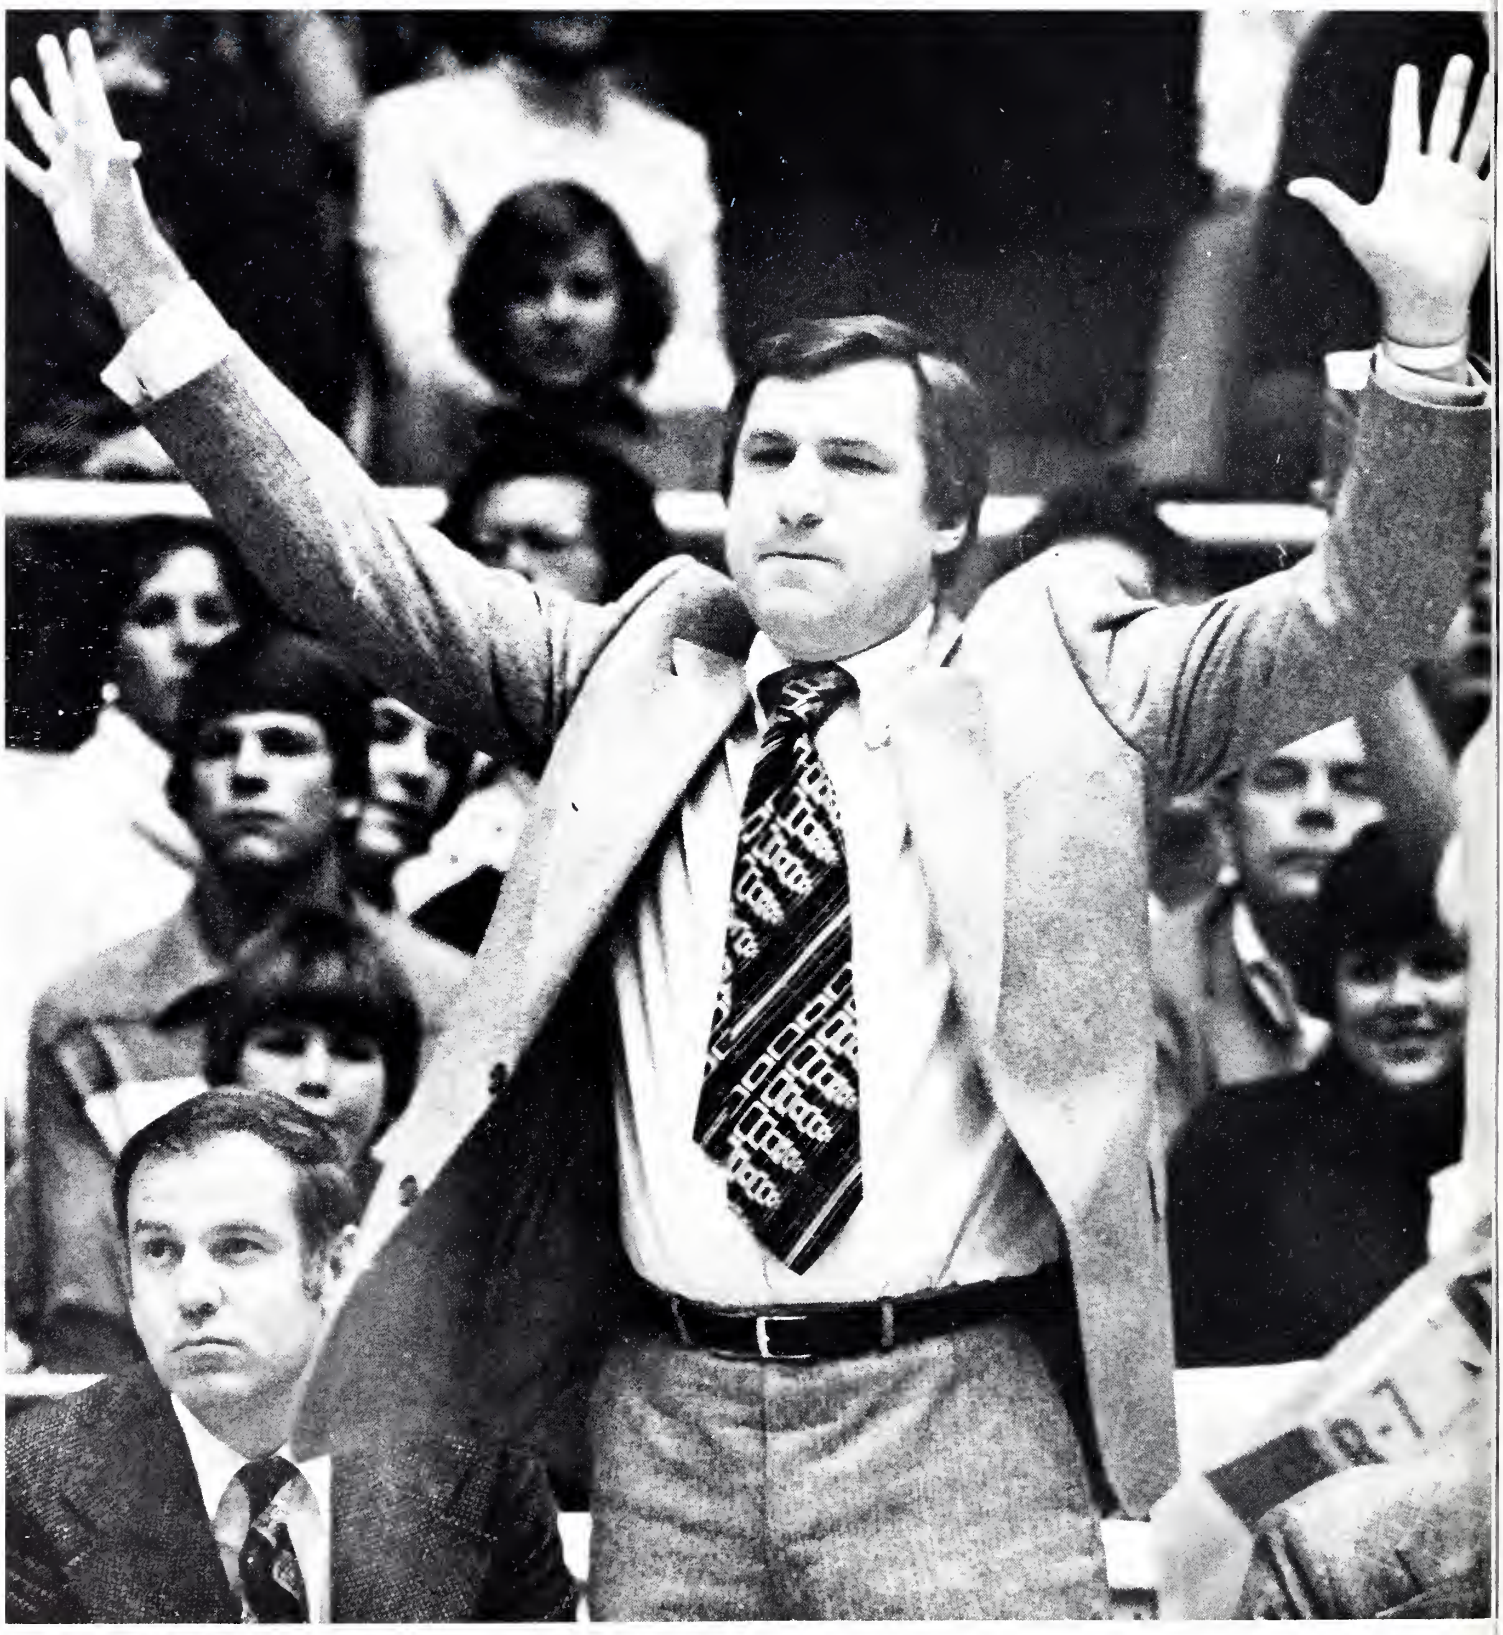
Dean Smith

Head Basketball Coach



The head basketball coach at the University of North Carolina is Dean Smith, a man with one of the greatest reputations in the history of the college game.

In 17 seasons at Carolina, Smith has an amazing record of 363 victories against only 121 losses. That's a percentage of .750, the highest of any active coach who has been on the major-college level at least 12 seasons.

Under Smith, Carolina has reached the NCAA semi-finals five times in the last 12 years. Only UCLA has been to the final four more times in that period. In fact, the only coach in history who has made more Final Four appearances than Smith is John Wooden and the only other man to equal Smith's five trips is Adolph Rupp.

In the last dozen years Carolina has won the Atlantic Coast Conference regular-season championship eight times and never finished lower than second in the league standings. The Tar Heels have won six ACC Tournament titles in that same stretch and have also captured five Eastern Regional crowns. No other coach has ever won as many ACC regular-season or tournament titles as Smith.

After Smith took Carolina to the NCAA championship game in 1977, he was named National Coach of the Year by the National Association of Basketball Coaches. That honor came less than a year after he had guided the United States Basketball Team to a sweep of the 1976 Olympic Games in Montreal.

That Olympic victory ranks as one of Smith's greatest accomplishments. In only a few weeks he molded a college all-star team into a close-knit unit. However, the Americans faced the tremendous challenge of competing against international teams which had been playing together for years.

But, with Smith emphasizing a tough pressure defense and fast-breaking, team play on offense, the United Sates regained the Gold Medal it had lost in the controversial 1972 Games.

Four of Smith's Tar Heels played key roles in the Olympic sweep—Mitch Kupchak, Tommy LaGarde, Walter Davis and Phil Ford. In fact, Smith has had players on each of the past four Olympic teams. Larry Brown starred in the 1964 Games at Tokyo; Charlie Scott helped win the championship in Mexico City in 1968; and Bobby Jones played on the 1972 team at Munich.

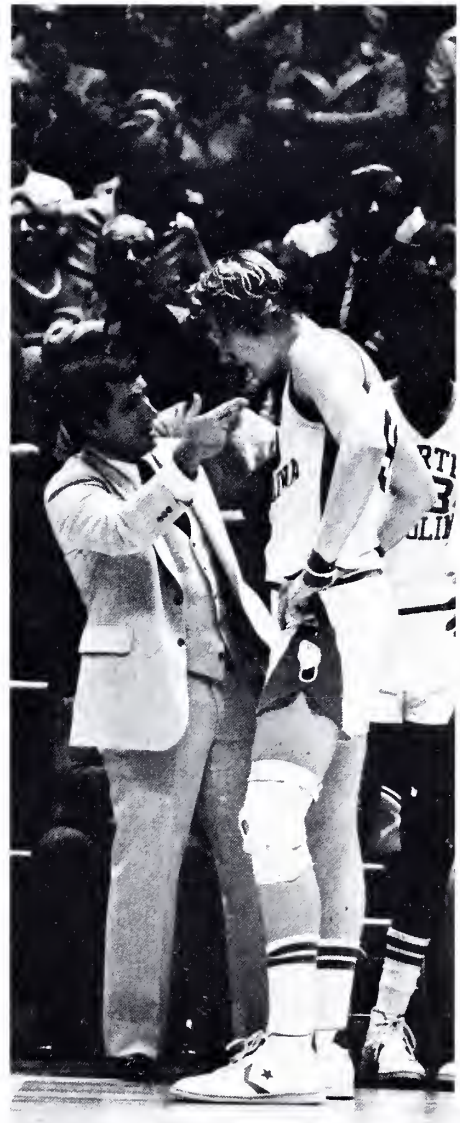
Smith's Olympic triumph was just another in a long line of his remarkable successes. His record in the last 12 years is 297-74, a percentage over .800. That gives his teams an average record of 25-6 in that period. Carolina went to a national post-season tournament all 12 of those seasons. The Tar Heels won the National Invitation Tournament in 1971.

How does Smith work all this magic?

It's a combination of things. He has tremendous rapport with his players, he is a master teacher and his style of play gets amazing results.

Former Marquette Coach Al McGuire may have put it best when he said, "If anyone was ever born to be a college coach, it's Dean Smith. He's the Jack Armstrong type person."

Carolina teams under Smith are known for unselfish play, great teamwork and a tenacious man-to-man defense.



Although the Tar Heels specialize in a whirlwind, fast-breaking offense, averaging 85.2 points per game for the last 12 years, they also have a disciplined attack and always rank among the national leaders in field goal percentage. Last year's mark was 53.2.

Among Smith's many innovations are his run-and-jump defense, the mixing of combination pressure defenses, the point zone, team huddles at the foul line, foul line alignment, the tired signal, the free lance passing or motion game and the famed four corners offense. Bench enthusiasm is another trademark of Smith's teams which have long been known for their togetherness.

His defensive and offensive schemes are constantly studied by other coaches across the nation and around the world. Many college, professional and foreign coaches visit the Tar Heel campus during the off-season to get advice from Smith. His high school coaching clinic is one of the most popular in the nation.

In fact, Smith's innovations have actually changed the course of the college game. As University of South Florida Coach Chip Connor put it, "Dean Smith has had more impact on the game than anybody in the past 10 years."

Smith's success at Carolina has been shared by those around him. Two of his assistants, Kenny Rosemond and John Lotz, left Carolina to take head coaching jobs in the Southeastern Conference. Another former aide, Larry Brown, is a successful professional coach with the Denver Nuggets. Smith's current assistants, Bill Guthridge and Eddie Fogler, have turned down head coaching jobs at major universities to remain at Carolina. Smith, himself, has been offered numerous other coaching jobs, both on the college and professional level.

In the last 12 years alone, 21 of Smith's players have gone on to play professional basketball in this country and 11 others have played professionally in Europe. No active coach has had as many All-Americas as Smith. Ford, his star player last season, was named National Player of the Year.

A native of Emporia, Kansas, Smith attended the University of Kansas on an academic scholarship. He played freshman football and varsity basketball and baseball there. He was a member of the Jayhawk basketball team which won the national championship in 1952 and finished second in 1953.

Smith was assistant basketball coach and baseball coach at the Air Force

Academy in 1958 when he was brought to Carolina by Frank McGuire, then the Tar Heel coach. When McGuire left to join the professional ranks in 1961, Smith was named the head coach.

Caught with slim material, his first team had an 8-9 record. There have been no losers since then and the odds are that there never will be.

Carolina has swept the unbelievable total of 23 tournament championships since Smith took the head coaching job. The Tar Heels captured five tournament titles during the 1971-72 season alone.

Smith is a great good-will ambassador for the University. He is called upon to lecture at basketball clinics all over the world. He has been a member of the national rules committee. Smith makes numerous speeches each year. His basketball camp for youngsters is so popular that he never advertises it. In fact, it is always filled by early March.

Smith has served on the Board of Directors of the Fellowship of Christian Athletes. He is presently on the Board of Directors of the National Coaches Association, serving as third vice-president. He is on the Board of Trustees of the National Basketball Hall of Fame and is a member of the ABAUSA Games Committee which is responsible for all American international competition, including the Pan American and Olympic Games.

In his spare time, Smith enjoys golf, playing tennis, spinning records and reading books on a variety of subjects. He has a special interest in theology.

Two of Smith's three children, Mrs. Sharon Kepley and Sandy, are recent Carolina graduates. His son, Scott, is currently a student at the University.

Smith's wife, Linnea, is a physician at North Carolina Memorial Hospital.

Bill Guthridge

Dean Smith's chief assistant at the University of North Carolina is Bill Guthridge, one of the brighest coaches in college basketball.

Guthridge, entering his 12th year on the Tar Heel staff, has a thorough knowledge of all aspects of the profession— teaching, organizing, motivating and recruiting. He works closely with Smith in all phases of the Carolina program.

Guthridge's reputation is so outstanding that his name is usually mentioned every time there is a major college vacancy. He has turned down several head coaching jobs and has had his name withdrawn from consideration for others.

"Bill is one of the top coaches in America, and that includes head coaches as well as assistants," says Smith. "His record as an assistant here and at Kansas State has been tremendous. He has made great contributions to both programs."

Guthridge was also a key factor in the United States' 1976 basketball triumph in the Summer Olympic Games. He served as Smith's assistant on that coaching staff and also scouted the Americans' opponents.

In his 11 years at Carolina, Bill has helped guide the Tar Heels to 11 post-season tournaments, five Atlantic Coast Conference championships and the 1971 National Invitation Tournament.

While assisting with the varsity, Guthridge has also coached Carolina freshman and junior varsity teams, compiling a six-year record of 72-25 and winning the Big Four championship four times.

Smith gives him much of the credit for developing the players who have kept Carolina among the top basketball powers in the nation.

Guthridge has worked a great deal with both Carolina's offensive and defensive schemes. He is currently the Tar Heel shooting instructor. It is no coincidence that Carolina annually shoots better than 50 percent from the field. Last year's mark was 53.2.

Before coming to Chapel Hill, Guthridge was an assistant coach at Kansas State, his alma mater. During his time there, the Wildcats posted a 93-43 record, swept two Big Eight titles and advanced to the NCAA semi-finals.

A native of Parsons, Kan., Guthridge played his high school basketball for Harold Johnson, one of two brothers who were the innovators of the zone press in the 1930's.

Guthridge went on to play for Kansas State in the years the Wildcats reigned as Big Eight champions—1958, 1959 and 1960. He was chosen as one of the University's 13 most outstanding all-around seniors.

Following graduation, Bill coached for two years at Scott City (Kan.) High before returning to his alma mater as an assistant to the famed Tex Winter.

Besides working with Smith and Winter, two of the great names in coaching, Guthridge has also coached in Puerto Rico summer leagues for two years. He was once named coach-of-the-year and was invited to coach the Puerto Rican team in the 1968 Olympics. However, he had to turn down the offer because of his work at Carolina.

"Not only is Bill an astute basketball technician," says Smith, "but he is also an excellent teacher. He is highly respected by the players who have been through our program. He is sincere in his recruiting and I think this has made him a favorite of prospective student-athletes and their families. He is a man of great integrity."

Unlike many coaches, Guthridge says he actually enjoys recruiting.

"Some people say recruiting is undesirable," says Guthridge. "But my experiences have been very enjoyable. I think that has a lot to do with the type of young man which our university attracts."

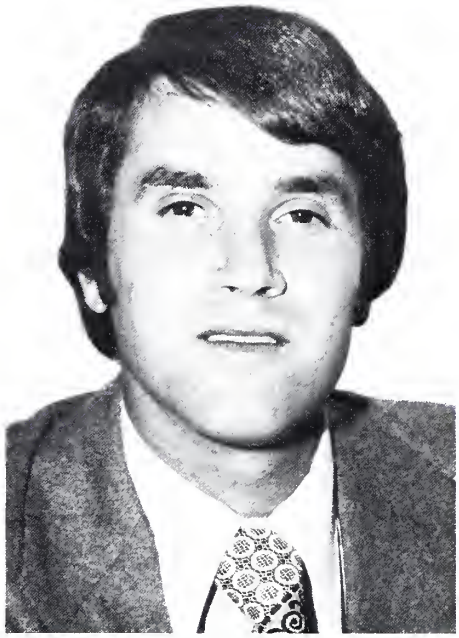
Guthridge, who got his B.S. in mathematics, has a master's degree in education and has taken courses at Carolina toward his Ph.D.

While basketball is his game, Bill is also a close follower of other sports. When he can find some spare time, he likes to play golf.

Guthridge has an excellent sense of humor and is one of the most popular after-dinner speakers in the Carolina athletic department.

Bill and his wife, Leesie, have two sons, Jamie, 18, and Stuart, 15, and a daughter, Megan, six.

Eddie Fogler



Eddie Fogler, who helped guide Carolina to two Atlantic Coast Conference basketball championships as a player, is now working that same kind of magic as a coach.

Fogler, beginning his sixth year as a Tar Heel assistant, knows the game very well and is considered an excellent teacher. He is also a top-flight recruiter and travels extensively for Coach Dean Smith.

"Eddie has unusual sincerity in recruiting and he is an excellent recruiter because of that," says Smith. "He has a genuine love for the University and as a result, he can present it well."

Fogler has a solid background in fundamental basketball. He learned the game as a youngster in New York City against excellent competition. In fact, he is one of the few players ever to make the all-city team twice.

Fogler then played guard on Tar Heel teams from 1967 to 1970. The 1968 and 1969 teams won ACC championships and advanced to the NCAA Final Four. In his senior season, the Tar Heels played in the National Invitation Tournament.

A playmaking guard, Fogler is considered one of the best ballhandlers and finest passers in Carolina history. He still ranks as one of the Tar Heels' all-time leaders in assists.

After receiving a bachelor's degree in mathematics in 1970, Fogler spent a year teaching and coaching at DeMatha High School in Washington, D.C. He was in charge of the DeMatha junior varsity.

He returned to Chapel Hill in the fall of 1971 as a graduate assistant. Fogler worked that season with the Carolina freshmen and also helped with scouting and recruiting. He earned his master's degree in 1972.

Fogler became a full-time staff member in 1973 and has made valuable contributions to the Tar Heel program.

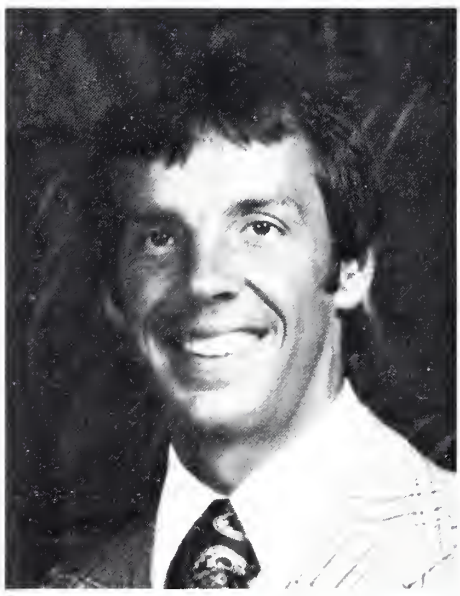
"Eddie brings a bright mind to the coaching profession," says Smith. "He really was like an assistant coach on the floor in his playing days here when he quarterbacked some of our championship teams. He's a hard worker and has great enthusiasm for the sport. I know he's got a great future in coaching."

In fact, Fogler's reputation has grown so quickly he has already received a head coaching offer from a major university. However, he says he's perfectly happy in Chapel Hill.

"Of course, I think about being a head coach," he says, "but that is in the future. Right now, I couldn't find a better place to work than here."

Fogler is one of the most popular members of the Carolina athletic staff. He enjoys all sports in his spare time. Eddie is a bachelor.

Roy Williams



The newest member of the Carolina coaching staff is Roy Williams, who was named a part-time assistant coach last summer.

A 1972 Carolina graduate, Williams played on the Tar Heel freshman team in 1968-69.

For the past five years Williams has served as athletic director and head basketball coach at Owen High School in Asheville, N.C.

Roy and his wife Wanda have one son, Scott.

A Special Tribute to a Special Player

"There's been a lot of good players in the ACC, but if I had to pick the best one, it would be Phil Ford."

Lefty Driesell
October 11, 1978

There are very few people who would disagree with the Maryland basketball coach on the above statement, certainly none who followed Phil Ford's incredible career at the University of North Carolina.

Phil guided the Tar Heels to four straight NCAA Tournament appearances and a four-year record of 99-25.

He was the first freshman ever to start his first game at Carolina. In his rookie season he led the Tar Heels to a sweep of the Atlantic Coast Conference Tournament and was named the tourney's MVP. Sparked by his play the Tar Heels won the ACC regular-season championship his final three years.

Ford capped an amazing career last season by being named National Player of the Year. He was a three-time All-America, twice the ACC Athlete of the Year, an Olympic Gold Medal winner and a coverboy for numerous magazines.

He set school scoring and assist records. He did things on the basketball court that had never been done before and will probably never be done again.

And yet, despite all his accomplishments, Phil left Carolina the same friendly, good-natured young man he was when he first enrolled here. Success did not spoil Phil Ford.

There have been great players at Carolina in the past; there are great players here now; and there will be great players here in the future. But, there will never be another player like Phil Ford.

Players like Phil come along once in a lifetime—superior athletes who are also superior human beings. It is going to be a long time before we see his likes again.

Ford accepting the John R. Wooden Award as the college player of the year.

Carmichael Auditorium

The home of the Carolina Tar Heels is beautiful Carmichael Auditorium, or "Blue Heaven" as it is known by Carolina fans.

It is not exactly a heaven for visiting teams, however, as few of them win in Chapel Hill. In fact, the Tar Heel record at home stands at 107-13 since the arena opened in 1965.

Carmichael is always packed with overflow crowds of partisan, enthusiastic Tar Heel fans. Every home game is sold out before the season begins. The only way a non-student can get a ticket to Carmichael is to be a large contributor to the Educational Foundation. Even pre-season scrimmages and exhibition games are sellouts.

Carmichael is located in the tall pine trees at the heart of the Carolina campus. It is considered one of the most beautiful basketball arenas in the country.

The auditorium has been the home of eight Atlantic Coast Conference regular-season championship teams, six ACC Tournament winners, five Eastern Regional champions and one National Invitation Tournament champion. Carolina captured its 1,000th victory at Carmichael seven years ago.

Students wait in long lines for a chance to see a game in Carmichael. In fact, they often sleep outside the auditorium the night before tickets are distributed for games.

Several hundred seats were added to Carmichael after the 1975-76 season, pushing capacity to 10,000.

Most of the Carolina athletic offices are located in Carmichael. Athletic Director Bill Cobey and Basketball Coach Dean Smith have their offices there. The halls are lined with sketches of many of Carolina's most outstanding athletes and there are five trophy cases containing awards and pictures from all sports.

The Auditorium is named for the late William D. Carmichael, Jr., one of the most popular gentlemen ever to serve on the University campus. He left a lucrative Wall Street business to become associated with Carolina.

In Chapel Hill, Carmichael was comptroller and later vice-president of the Consolidated University. He also served for a time as the Consolidated University's acting president. He died in 1961.

The Auditorium adjoins Woollen Gymnasium, long-time site of varsity competition and now the center of Carolina's physical education and intramural activities.

The University

Nestled in the rolling foothills of piedmont North Carolina is Chapel Hill, home of the University of North Carolina.

The late artist William Meade Prince once described the town and University as "The Southern Part of Heaven," a tag richly deserved.

Like many things in this small, yet cosmopolitan village of 35,000 people, the magic, romance and beauty that fascinated Prince remain unchanged today.

In fact, Time Magazine has called Chapel Hill, "One of the 20 most enjoyable places to live in the United States."

The school is the oldest state university in the nation, having been chartered in 1789 and opening its doors to students in 1795 while George Washington was president. However, it was not until after Reconstruction that Carolina began making the rapid progress that has lifted it to the top of American education.

Currently, there are 14 colleges and schools and more than 70 departments and other academically-affiliated divisions, institutes and centers at the University.

Strong in the humanities as well as the social and natural sciences, the University has one of the nation's leading journalism schools and a business administration school of special potency commensurate with the growing industrial might of the South.

Carolina is also one of only six universities in the country with a full range of health professional schools on the same campus. UNC's School of Dentistry is one of the nation's best and the Schools of Medicine, Pharmacy, Nursing and Public Health are also well-regarded. North Carolina Memorial Hospital on campus is the University's teaching and research hospital and is a teaching center for hundreds of clinics in North Carolina's 100 counties.

In addition, the University boasts a law school with a national reputation and strong schools in education, library science and social work as well as the outstanding undergraduate programs in the arts and sciences.

The key to Carolina's national prestige, however, is probably its excellent graduate school. A recent rating of graduate schools by the American Council on Education put 12 UNC graduate departments in the highest category and 12 in the second highest. That made Carolina the leader of all universities in the Southeast.

Alan Carter of the ACE described the University as, "the leading southern university, a liberal voice in the region."

The University is continuing to grow as it strives to keep pace with today's changing world. Growth has been especially tremendous in the last two decades. Those years have seen the founding of the School of Journalism, the School of Business Administration, the Carolina Population Center, the WUNC-TV public television station, the Ackland Art Center and a new computer system.

In the same time, building has increased as there are now close to 300 major structures on the Carolina campus. Student enrollment has mushroomed. The faculty has grown to nearly 1,800 members. New courses have been added to the curriculum and old ones revised. Carolina now offers academic majors in some 200 different areas.

Here are some other facts of interest about one of America's great academic institutions:

- Carolina's Morehead Planetarium, the first ever built on a college campus, is one of the most sophisticated in the world. Since 1960, American astronauts in four NASA programs have been trained in celestial navigation at the Planetarium.
- Thirty-one of North Carolina's 64 governors have been graduates of UNC, including current governor Jim Hunt who earned a degree from Carolina's law school.
- One of the best-known organizations on campus is the Carolina Playmakers. Former members include Thomas Wolfe, Paul Green, Betty Smith and Andy Griffith.
- James Knox Polk, the only American president to graduate first in his college class, was an 1818 alumnus of UNC and the 11th president of the United States.
- The William Hayes Ackland Art Center contains European and American art objects dating from 3,000 B.C. and is especially rich in 19th century French painting.
- The Institute of Government on campus is a training center for city, county and state officials and employees. It is also involved in research and consultations for state and local governments.
- The University's television network feeds programs into North Carolina's public schools.
- The libraries consist of the Louis Round Wilson Library, a research library in the humanities and social sciences; the Robert B. House Undergraduate Library; and more than a dozen school and departmental libraries.
- The W. C. Coker Arboretum is a five-acre naturalistic garden on the east edge of the historic campus, containing 400 varieties of ornamental plants and shrubs.
- Another feature is the Institute for Research in Social Science, an organization performing fact-finding duties in sociology, economics, political science, psychology and other fields including race relations, urban studies and regional development.

But perhaps the most outstanding feature of the University is the gentle way the new has been blended with the old to form one of the most beautiful campuses in the world.

Ivy-covered buildings and tree-lined walkways surround spacious grassy greens where students lounge between classes. Tall pines cover south campus where modern buildings have been constructed.

In direct contrast on north campus are the South Building, built in the period from 1798 to 1814, and Old East, the oldest building on a state university campus in America. The cornerstone to Old East was laid in 1793 and the dormitory was dedicated as a national historical landmark in 1966.

A visitor to Chapel Hill can't help but notice thousands of cars plastered with bumper stickers praising Carolina and this beautiful village. The prestige of the University and the natural beauty and pleasant environment of the community lend credence to those stickers' message, "I'd Rather Be in Chapel Hill."

A Town Touched by Strange Magic

The late Jake Wade wrote this piece a good many years ago. Even today, it captures the spirit of this Town as well as anything we know. Mr. Wade was director of sports publicity at the University at the time of his death.

This is a town touched by strange magic and one to which its peoples, many of them a curious breed, hold a rare and somewhat inexplicable attachment. Our town has no rivers, no mountains, no seas, but in the spring it is beautiful and in all seasons it is both wonderful and sad, romantic in the spirit of the youth it harbors in the educational process of the great State University, which is the town's principal industry.

Chapel Hill, where bells wake you in the morning, regardless of whether you live in the Beta house, Cobb dormitory or on Laurel Hill Road, and where the bells keep ringing periodically the day long, with the chimes taking over in the majesty of twilight and on certain important occasions such as the big football games.

Not, really, a village any more, although its inhabitants, some living in the past, like to consider it as such . . . None of us will go so far as to say that it possesses the tranquillity and serenity of the Twenties, when Thomas Wolfe, and Paul Green and LeGette Blythe and "Monk" McDonald and the Carmichaels found adventure, melancholy and beauty in their diverse pursuits on the old campus and the unexplored lands beyond . . . It is not as small, and not quite as nice, but almost, and there is a whole new world of knowledge to be discovered here with resources of mind and matter in abundance.

Chapel Hill, where the civic clubs do not sing, salute flags or wear badges, but unostentatiously and quietly engage in humanitarian projects as earnestly as their backslapping counterparts of the cities . . . Where its only commercial radio station taboos hillbilly tunes and plays sweet music and deathless great arias.

In Chapel Hill that man in dungarees, coming out of the post office, is just as apt to be a best-selling novelist as the town's leading plumber or the divorced author of profound treatises on the science of nuptial compatibility . . . Where shoe shines, on the most modest leather, cost you twenty cents per copy, with the same treatment from five to ten cents cheaper in a much larger town across the way, but there you are not waited on by one of the town's most popular citizens who contributes philosophy, sound sense and remarkably accurate football prognostications as a dividend to the dab of mundane polish.

People in our town go to church, pray, are kind and considerate, both the students and the townspeople, as in all towns . . . But where some of the ministers never wear hats, do wear sweaters, and sometimes drive the more modest editions of those little foreign make sports cars, but their democracy in manners is no compromise with the dignity of their souls, for our town is blessed with able and Godly preachers.

Chapel Hillians, like the folks in your town or city, play poker and bridge but, strangely, little or no gin rummy, and they play golf and handball . . . Chapel Hill, where the tiniest tots are able swimmers, and old men play an exciting brand of tennis . . . Where there are circles and cliques, as in all towns, for the socials, round tables and sports, but where those who travel together are frequently of oddly dissimilar tastes . . . A famous singer breaks bread often and attends games with a Kenan professor . . . A coach has tea regularly with a brilliant author . . . A university department head finds more wisdom, truth and beauty in the philosophy of a bistro keeper than in the ivory towers of his own intellectual level and prefers his company . . . But Chapel Hill is a town of neighbors who are bird watchers and who tend their flowers with loving care and talk over stone walls and drink their coffee or cocktails while talking oftenest about their children and grandchildren . . . That's Chapel Hill. God bless our town and its gentle way of life.

Carolina's Greatest Players

From Cobb to Rosenbluth, from the "Blind Bomber" to the "Kangaroo Kid," from Dillon to Ford. The list of basketball greats at the University of North Carolina is an all but endless one.

It all started way back in 1911 when the Tar Heels fielded their first team and the sport has been getting bigger and bigger ever since. Few universities in the United States have produced as many All-America players as Carolina and the list grows longer almost every year.

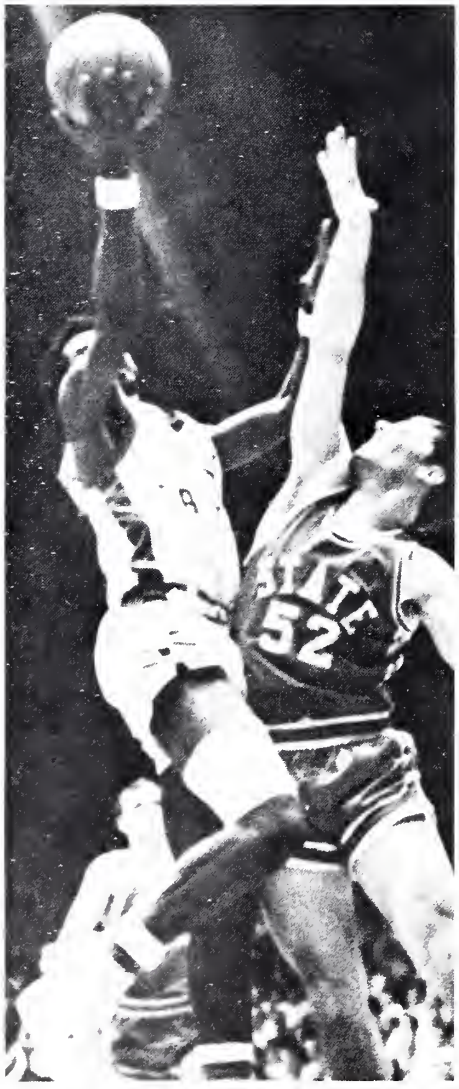
Carolina first hit the big-time in the sport in 1924 when the Tar Heels won 26 games in a row and swept the national championship. Stars of that great team were Jack Cobb, Cartwright Carmichael and Monk McDonald.

While the style of play has changed drastically since then, these men are still recognized as three of Carolina's greatest stars. Cobb, in fact, is a member of the Helms Basketball Hall of Fame. He was chosen National Player of the Year in 1926, the first of four Tar Heels to win that honor.

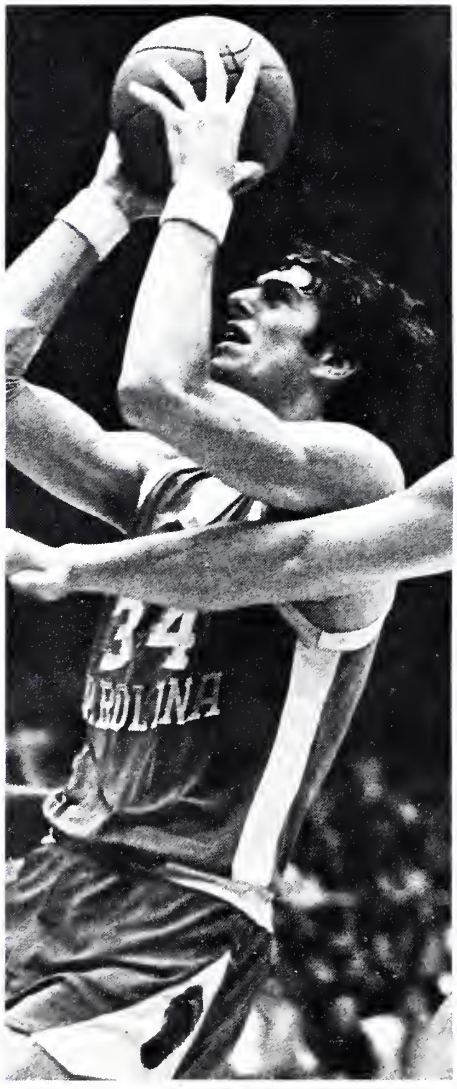
Although the Tar Heels did not have an All-America like Cobb in the 1930's, there were many outstanding players. Ivan (Jack) Glace, Earl Ruth, Virgil Weathers, Tom Alexander, Jim McCachren and Stewart (Snooks) Aitken made the All-Southern Conference team during that era.

The big star of the early 1940's was George Glamack—"The Blind Bomber." Glamack had terrible eyesight and could barely see the basket while standing right under it. However, he developed the uncanny sense of knowing where the hoop was in relation to his position on the court. He perfected a hook shot which he used with either hand and with great accuracy. He was a two-time All-America and Helms Player of the Year in 1941. He's now in the Hall of Fame.

All-America John (Hook) Dillon was the star of the 1946 team which lost to Oklahoma A&M and big Bob Kurland



Charlie Scott



Bobby Jones

in the national finals. Dillon, however, had an excellent supporting cast in Jim Jordan, Bones McKinney, Jim White and Bob Paxton. Jordan, in fact, had been an All-America in 1945 and the Most Valuable Player in the Southern Conference.

Eleven years later, the Tar Heels again reached the national finals. This time they won the NCAA title, defeating Wilt Chamberlain and Kansas in a triple-overtime thriller that rates among the greatest college games ever.

Lennie Rosenbluth was the star of that team. He was named National Player of the Year as Carolina went 32-0. Rosenbluth was a great shooter.

Other starters on that great team were Pete Brennan (an All-America the following season), Tommy Kearns, Joe Quigg and Bob Cunningham.

The stars were many during the 1960's. Big Lee Shaffer was the Atlantic Coast Conference Player of the Year in 1960. Shaffer was a great scorer and later became an all-star performer in the National Basketball Association with the Syracuse Nationals.

York Larese and Doug Moe also starred for the Tar Heels in the early part of the decade. Larese ranks as one of the greatest free throw shooters in Carolina history. Moe was a sensational all-around star and now coaches the San Antonio Spurs.

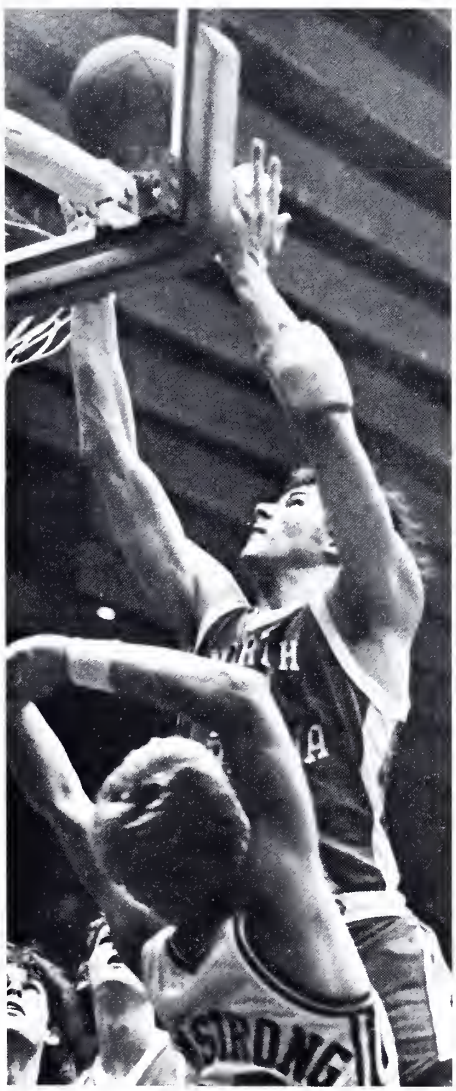
A teammate of Moe's was Larry Brown, a diminutive guard who rates as one of the finest playmakers in Carolina history. Brown played on the 1964 U.S. Olympic team which swept the Gold Medal. He now coaches the Denver Nuggets.

Billy Cunningham, a three-time All-ACC selection, was the next star on the Carolina scene. He made All-America in 1965. The "Kangaroo Kid" went on to become a great professional star with the Philadelphia 76ers and now coaches that team.

Bob Lewis, a thin sharpshooter from Washington, D.C. stepped into Cunningham's shoes as the next Tar Heel superstar. He holds the Carolina single-game scoring record with 49 points against Florida State.

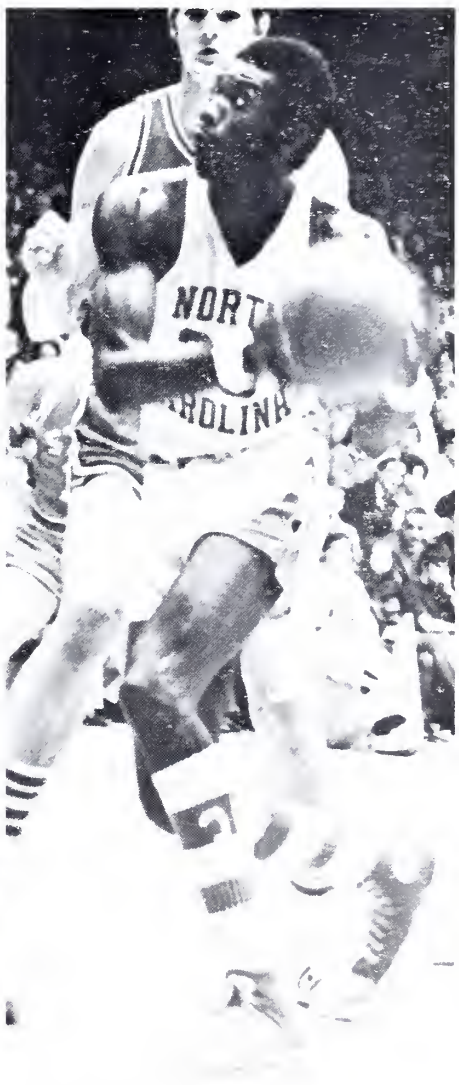
One of Carolina's greatest players was Larry Miller, an All-America in 1968 when he led his team to the national finals where the Tar Heels lost to Lew Alcindor and UCLA. Miller twice was named ACC Player of the Year. At 6-4 and 215 pounds, he was a rugged performer who dazzled crowds with driving layups and a great variety of shots.

Bill Bunting, Dick Grubar and Rusty Clark were Carolina starters on teams which won three straight ACC regular-season and tournament championships, swept three Eastern Regionals in a row and went to the final four in the nation.



Mitch Kupchak

Phil Ford



Bob McAdoo

Bunting had a great senior season and made All-ACC. Grubar was one of the most popular athletes to wear Carolina Blue and was a sparkling playmaker and scorer. Clark was a tough defensive performer and a great rebounder.

Then there was Charlie Scott, who excelled in every phase of the game. He made All-America in his senior season and was voted ACC Athlete of the Year. In 1968 he starred for the United States in the Olympic Games.

Three brilliant frontcourt players—Bill Chamberlain, Dennis Wuycik and Robert McAdoo—sparked Carolina teams in the early 1970's. Chamberlain was the Most Valuable Player in the 1971 National Invitation Tournament as the Tar Heels swept that title. Wuycik was a fine shooter and a rugged, aggressive rebounder. McAdoo had a great shooting touch and was an excellent rebounder. They led the Tar Heels to the NCAA's Final Four in 1972.

Then came George Karl, another highly popular player who amazed fans with his daring and diving on the court. He started for three years and made the All-ACC team.

One of the most complete players to play the college game was Bobby Jones. Jones had great quickness and was a sensational defender. He's one of the NBA's biggest stars.

Another great all-around player was Mitch Kupchak, the 1976 ACC Player of the Year. Mitch led the Tar Heels to a 25-4 record in his senior season and played a key role in the Washington Bullets' NBA championship sweep last year.

Then came Walter Davis, John Kuester and Tommy LaGarde. They played on Carolina teams which won 98 games and lost only 23. All three were excellent defensive players and good shooters.

Davis, in fact, is regarded as one of the greatest clutch players in Tar Heel history. He was the NBA's Rookie of the Year last season. Kuester was the Most Valuable Player in both the ACC Tournament and the Eastern Regionals as a senior. LaGarde was an All-America on the team selected by the pro coaches.

The most recent superstar was Phil Ford, who was voted National Player of the Year last season. He ranks as the all-time Tar Heel leader in points and assists. He has been called the greatest guard ever to play the college game.

A young man who seems certain to join the list of all-time greats is Mike O'Koren, who was an All-America as just a sophomore last year.

Educational Foundation

One of the most important organizations in the Carolina Athletic Department is the University's Educational Foundation.

It is the Educational Foundation which makes possible all athletic scholarships awarded by Carolina

As the Tar Heel sports program has grown through the years, the Foundation has done likewise. It is the enthusiasm and generosity of Foundation members which allows Carolina to field its excellent athletic teams.

"Interest reaches a new peak every year," says Ernie Williamson, the Foundation's executive vice-president "There are many reasons for this, but the most important has been our great success in all sports the last few years."

The Educational Foundation currently has over 2,500 members who finance a scholarship program that costs over $700,000 a year.

"Since its inauguration in 1938, the Foundation has provided scholarships, either partial or full, for over 2,200 student-athletes," says Williamson "The majority of these athletes are anxious to return contributions which would enable us to award scholarships to others."

Williamson has always contended that a donation to the Foundation is not specifically a donation to athletics. He says that the high caliber young athlete who is awarded a scholarship is a great representative of the University

Williamson feels the overall bonus is in helping a worthy young student obtain a college education Athletics come second.

Any donation to the Educational Foundation is welcome. However, membership in the Rams Club is restricted to those who contribute $100 or more.

Carolina was one of the first schools in the nation to set up an endowment program for athletics This program was started in 1968 and has been quite successful

"We have life members of $10,000 and $25,000, endowed scholarships of $50,000 and have just recently enlisted 100 members who have purchased $50,000 scholarships through life insurance," says Williamson "Several members have also indicated they have included the Foundation in their wills and bequests to enable continued success in the future."

Foundation members receive priority on seat locations in football and basketball A special room on the south wing of Kenan Field House serves as a meeting place for Rams and their families This area is open two hours before football games and provides a lounge and picnic facilities for those who come early

"A Foundation membership is a badge of prestige and loyalty to the University," Williamson points out "Many of our finest members did not attend Carolina, however They just heard about our program and felt it was worthy."

It is important to point out that all donations to the Foundation are tax deductible.

ORIGIN AND INCORPORATION

Three loyal and athletic-minded University of North Carolina alumni met in the office of Secretary of State Thad Eure at Raleigh in December of 1938 and organized the Educational Foundation, Inc.

The men were John Umstead, Jr of Chapel Hill, Max Abernethy of Raleigh, and Benton Stacy of Reidsville

A charter was drawn with these three men as the incorporators and submitted to the late O Max Gardner, who had his law firm clear it with the Internal Revenue Department as a chantable organization. The charter was issued December 7, 1938

PURPOSE

The purpose of the Educational Foundation, Inc., is to raise funds for providing scholarships or grants-in-aid at the University to worthy and qualified high school students with athletic ability.

The Educational Foundation, Inc. operates on a dignified and realistic plane in compliance with all of the regulations of the National Collegiate Athletic Association and the Atlantic Coast Conference.

It has the blessing and good will of all the University administration and, in its unique field, occupies a status similar to that of the Business Foundation, the Medical Foundation, and other money-raising organizations working for the benefit of the University

The full amount of all donations of Foundation members is used for scholarships and grants. The organization has no administrative expenses.

Ernie Williamson

Carolina's man for all seasons is Ernie Williamson, the executive vice-president of the Educational Foundation.

Regardless of the time of year, Ernie is always on the move—speaking to Foundation members, talking to prospective members and following all of Carolina's athletic teams.

Williamson is a Carolina graduate with A.B. and M.A. degrees. The native of Crewe, Va. played one season of football here under Carl Snavely and was regarded as an outstanding tackle.

He was lured away to professional football and played with Los Angeles and Washington before a knee injury ended his career.

Ernie returned to Chapel Hill to finish work on his degrees and then went to the University of the South at Sewanee, Tenn. He was an assistant coach there for two years and head coach for three seasons.

He returned to Carolina in 1957 to accept his present position. At one time he also served as a recruiter for the football program.

He is married to the former Elva Smith of Lawrenceville, Va. They have a son, Wayne, and a daughter, Carole.
